SATs ARE OVER!

SATs test are finally over for year 6 pupils and they have been celebrating all their hard work this week! We tracked down some hard working year 6s to asked them about their experiences. Here's what they said:

I think they went really well and I enjoyed them a lot. Some were easier than other. It wasn't as hard as I thought.
Coby

I was nervous about them. On the first test it was really hard but I think I was nervous. After the first test I found it easy and even had time to go over all of my answers.

Questions:

- How do you think the year 6 children feel now?
- How do you think they felt before the SATs?

Some of the year 6 children were even interviewed by a local radio station and asked about their experiences of SATs. The radio station wanted to ask the children what they thought about some of the claims that SATs tests are too much pressure for children so young. Some people have said that SATs should be stopped, however the government says it is an important way to see how well children are doing in their studies. Either way we are proud to have been on the RADIO: here are some of the comments.

I found the tests easier than I thought they would be. I think they were made out to be harder than they were. The teachers supported us really well.

Russell Lambat

I found it (SATs) hard because there was loads of pressure on all of us but I persevered and we all did our best!

Questions:

- How might growth mind-set have helped the year 6s?
- Why do you think the children were so positive about the SATs?
- How did Courthouse teachers help the children feel confident in the SATs?
- Do you think SATs are too much pressure?
- Do you think that the younger children should be doing SATs? Is it more pressure for them?
- Why do governments want them?
